NEW AGGREGATION SERVICE FOR DIGITAL SHEET MUSIC

Music Aggregation Services Finland Ltd. have today announced a service which allows independent and self-published composers' digital sheet music to be published on the nkoda platform.

Composers have been delivering their works to potential performers as PDF files for a long time. Many composers have PDF scores on their websites, for free downloading, in order to make their works easily available for potential performers. If the performer gets interested, the composer might earn a little bit by selling the sheet music for performances.

End-users have been enjoying several digital sheet music services for some years now. Digital PDF downloads of pop music and standard classics is a growing trend, and it is a rather straightforward process to purchase and download a PDF sheet music file onto one's tablet, and then use it in a dedicated PDF music reading application, creating own markings etc.

The nkoda digital sheet music service launched less than two years ago, and has since grown to include tens of thousand of titles and millions of pages of sheet music, all legally available for a monthly fee. nkoda's user base is solid and it has attracted an unprecedented number of publishers to join the service. Today, more than 120 professional publishers have made their catalogue digitally available through nkoda, making the app the de facto go-to digital sheet music library. However, a vast majority of composers are left outside because nkoda only works with commercial, established music publishing companies.

The Escobar-Digital service brought to you by Music Aggregation Services Finland has launched to remedy this. It is an easy-to-use upload engine for independent and self-published composers, allowing their digital sheet music to be published on the nkoda platform. The composer retains all rights for their works and gets 100 % of the usage royalties paid out by nkoda. Different imprints are also available. Pricing starts at $14,90 / year with 5 works, and additional work packages can be bought any time for $5 / year for 5 works.

If you are an independent or self-published composer, our service is created with you in mind. We strongly believe that the world becomes a much better place when all the music composed by all composers is available for all! nkoda is the perfect ecosystem to distribute, showcase and promote your music and enjoy the accumulated usage royalties at the same time. Start publishing your digital sheet music portfolio to the world today!
